

Construction Law Services

Parr Brown's construction law attorneys are leaders in counseling, negotiating, and resolving claims and disputes in Utah and throughout the Intermountain West. Our experienced team of construction attorneys helps clients manage the distinctive and unique legal problems that may arise with each construction project.

What is Construction Law?

Construction law involves any legal issue related to the process of constructing or repairing physical structures. It encompasses contractual issues, property issues such as direct and consequential damage, insurance claims, and liability claims that may arise from the construction or repair process. Construction law can be complex, and often requires the assistance of an experienced construction attorney.
