Corporate Structure, Organizations and Governance

Parr Brown lawyers advise businesses on the legal aspects of ownership structure, contracts, financing, incorporation, collections, antitrust, taxes, purchase and sale of assets and succession planning.

We work closely in an outside "general counsel" role for companies without legal personnel and assist in-house counsel with their responsibilities.

Our full range of corporate representation includes public, private and bank financing, corporate compliance, reporting, and governance programs, as well as counsel to boards of directors and executives on matters such as corporate record-keeping, codes of ethics, and crisis management. Our firm also advises clients on intellectual property, environmental, and employment legal issues. Our real estate services include leasing, sales, purchases, development, and financing.

On a frequent basis, we develop and resolve commercial contracts and agreements using the best and most efficient course of action, whether through arbitration, mediation, or litigation.

What our clients are saying:

"[We] can always depend on the work product from the firm as they have consistently provided great work product at great value. All the attorneys have excellent approachability and responsiveness and are rated as some of the very best in Salt Lake City. Comparatively, other firms are not as knowledgeable and sometimes twice the money."

– Chief Legal Officer of a medical company commenting on the company's ten-year relationship with the firm in such areas as corporate governance, commercial transactions, mergers and acquisitions, employment, securities, real estate, and litigation matters.
