

Katherine D. Pasker

Associate

Katherine is passionate about helping clients build the infrastructure of tomorrow. Katherine regularly assists businesses and individuals in negotiating the purchase, sale, or lease of property for office, hospitality, telecommunications, restaurant, or manufacturing uses. In particular, she enjoys helping clients navigate zoning and related regulatory approvals for projects large and small. She has represented clients in transactions with federal, state, local, and tribal government entities, and enjoys resolving the unique challenges presented by every new project.

Before attending law school Katherine gained substantial insight into the intersection between the commercial real estate market and local government while working for Salt Lake City's Office of Economic Development. Prior to joining Parr Brown, Katherine clerked for several district court judges and represented one of the country's largest telecommunications providers while practicing in Minneapolis, MN.
